In my opinion the existing regulatory climate is already dangerously burdensome. I believe it would be unwise of the company to encumber itself with new standards or policies requiring the commitment of assets to compliance monitoring or which may lead to forcing decisions not in the company's best interests. The company should make its decisions based on the best available information without precommitment to standards or policies which may or may not prove to be realistic or helpful in the context of actual circumstances. Therefore I urge the company not to adopt any of the proposed new standards.
